About the Winspear Fund Scholarships for Advanced Classical Music

Francis George Winspear was a successful businessman, a leading industrialist, a university professor in accounting, a volunteer and patron of several arts organizations, and a philanthropist renowned as an ardent admirer of music and the arts. His contributions to Canada's business, academic and cultural scenes were both direct and indirect, through his inspiration and mentorship of others in their pursuit of excellence.

The Winspear Fund at Edmonton Community Foundation has a tradition of encouraging excellence within the arts and education sectors. In particular, the Fund supports the Edmonton Opera, the Edmonton Symphony Orchestra and talented local artists. Each year, a portion of the Winspear Fund is allocated to support students who are pursuing advanced studies in classical music (instrument or voice). Awards generally range between $1,000 and $6,000, depending on the circumstances of the applicant. In 2009, 17 students were awarded a combined total of over $57,000.

How will awards be paid?

Awards are intended to assist recipients with costs such as tuition, fees, books and supplies, living expenses, travel for auditions and special opportunities for development of musical talent. If appropriate, awards will be paid directly to the post-secondary institution. However, the Fund will pay awards in accordance with what is best suited to each recipient's situation.

It is the responsibility of the recipient to adhere to all regulations of the accepting post-secondary institution regarding all fee payments and to ensure that registration and/or enrolment status is not jeopardized. Students are also responsible for all expenses not covered by the award, in accordance with institution payment deadlines. No part of any award issued by the Edmonton Community Foundation can be applied to amounts related to studies which have already occurred.
